The General Recruitment Program of the session was one of the most significant highlights. The UPES ACM Student Chapter Team believes that stepping out of the comfort zones and trying new things is the best way to grow. After much discussions and planning, the chapter took on a different approach for the general elections this year.

The applicants were divided among the departments of their choice, and were mentored by the respective heads for a span of a few months. Thereafter, a detailed report was presented by the heads, and selections were made in accordance to the student's overall activity and performance during the period.

The alternate procedure undoubtedly helped in a better judgement and analysis of the student's orientation, and skill set.
