ACM Tech Packs

Reading lists developed by subject experts, Tech Packs are integrated learning packages for serious computing professionals covering important topics in computing. The core of each Tech Pack is an annotated bibliography built around authoritative, foundational resources (articles from ACM magazines, journals, conference proceedings, multimedia) in ACM’s Digital Library, as well as key non-ACM sources.

Meticulously researched, peer-reviewed for relevance, and updated for currency, Tech Packs are innovative professional development resources for busy industry practitioners, as well as educators, students, and researchers. Tech Packs on Cloud Computing, Enterprise Architecture, Mobility, Business Intelligence & Data Management, and Security are live, while topics in development include Bioinformatics, Social Networking, Virtualization, Big Data, Machine Learning, Software as a Service, and Computing Ethics/Professionalism.

ACM Digital Library

Members can subscribe to the world’s most comprehensive database of literature for computing professionals. This full-text database includes the complete collection of ACM’s publications, including journals, conference proceedings, magazines, newsletters and multimedia content. The ACM DL aims to provide comprehensive coverage of the literature and also contains detailed bibliographic resources from a wide range of publishers in the field of computing.

ACM Learning Webinars

ACM Learning Webinars feature “virtual keynotes” and cutting-edge technical tutorials by distinguished speakers covering the hottest topics in computing today—and the burning questions of tomorrow. The webcasts are presented live and recorded for on-demand convenience. Topics covered have included cloud computing, mobile development, cybersecurity, business intelligence and data warehousing, software as a service, recommender systems, agile software development, natural language processing, parallel programming, machine learning, IPv6, big data, WebGL, spiral-model development, and computing ethics and professionalism. Barry Boehm, Vint Cerf, Kate Matsudaira, Don Gotterbarn, Armando Fox, Barry Devlin, Joe Konstan, and Dave Patterson are just a few of the venerated speakers who have presented.

ACM publishes, distributes, and archives original research and perspectives from leading computing and IT professionals. Many ACM publications include practical content for software developers, designers, and engineers.

- Communications of the ACM (CACM), the flagship magazine of ACM, featuring five sections—News, Viewpoints, Practice, Contributed and Review Articles, and Research Highlights—which provide ACM’s broad readership with critically important information. http://cacm.acm.org

- ACM Queue, featuring core content for practitioners written by leading experts, including case studies, roundtable discussions, blogs, columns, interviews, and more. http://queue.acm.org

- interactions, the premier publication in human-computer interaction. http://interactions.acm.org

- ACM Journals and Transactions cover cutting-edge aspects of computing, with articles written and edited by leading experts in their respective fields. The world-renowned Transactions Series with 34+ titles features many of the most respected peer-reviewed authors in computer science. http://www.acm.org/publications

- Conference proceedings, produced by ACM’s 170+ conferences held worldwide. http://dl.acm.org/proceedings.cfm

ACM Special Interest Groups

ACM’s 37 Special Interest Groups (SIGs) represent virtually every major area of computing. SIGs offer a wealth of resources including conferences, proceedings and newsletters covering a broad spectrum of technical expertise and providing firsthand knowledge of the latest development trends. ACM SIGs are a great way to meet peers, delve deeper into particular technical areas, and volunteer on interesting projects.

ACM Local Chapters

Hundreds of local chapters worldwide function as intellectual and geographical nodes of activity for both ACM members and the computing community at large, offering seminars, lectures, and the opportunity to meet peers and experts. Our Professional and Student Chapters enable all members to network with others with similar interests.
