Chitkara University's ACM Student Chapter chartered on 28 February in 2010 and the chapter commenced on March 8 in the same year. The chapter was initiated with a goal to generate curiosity among the students for impending technologies in computer science apart from the regular course content.

The chapter constantly endeavours to amplify the practical expertise of its members through expert talks, industry-oriented hands-on courses, workshops, industrial visits, quizzes and debugging and coding competitions. It is the combination of dedication, hard work and hunger for achieving perfection, along with the utmost sincerity shown by the team that makes our chapter the best. Our team is not just a team, rather we see ourselves as a family of around 800 members who are working constantly not only towards the growth of our chapter but also towards growth of inner-self and overall personality.

Various timely activities are organized and operated exclusively for educational and scientific purposes in order to:

- Increase and improvise the knowledge of upcoming research fields in science, design, development, languages, management.
- Improve interest in computing and its applications.

A Project Display Competition titled 'AARDA' is organized every semester to facilitate students to showcase their projects. The contest was meant for members as well as non-members. Students displayed their talent through various projects made under academia and the best project was awarded.

Through unending support provided by the chapter officers and faculty sponsor, tremendous enthusiasm has been instilled among the chapter officers to lead, inspire, explore, motivate and learn.

It is through this support that Chitkara ACM Student Chapter is the best Student Chapter in Chitkara University.
